

MERCER COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Fifty-Third & Fifty-Fourth Annual Commencement
August 6, 2021

The function of education is to teach one to think intensively
and to think critically.
Intelligence plus character-that is the goal of true education.

- Martin Luther King, Jr.

Academic Tradition

What began unceremoniously in the Middle Ages, when monks and students wore caps, gowns, and hoods at college and university functions, is today's time-honored tradition of academic commencement.

The robes were worn originally to protect against the damp and drafty chills of the 12th century castles and halls of learning. In the United States, university students wore caps and gowns daily to set them apart from their fellow citizens. This ritual gave rise to the perennial controversy between "town and gown."

The tradition continued until well after the Civil War, when these robes of varying design were standardized by the American Intercollegiate Commission in 1894. The distinctive meanings remained constant until the 1960s when some colleges and universities departed from the traditional black and adopted gowns in the institution's official colors.

Undergraduates earning an associate or bachelor's degree wear a gown with a semi-stiff yoke, long pleated front and intricate shirring across the shoulders and back. Distinguished by its long pointed sleeves, the gown is worn closed. Master's degree candidates don a gown that can be worn either open or closed, with the back sleeves being oblong and square cut.

Velvet distinguishes the doctoral candidate's gown, which also can be worn open or closed. With long velvet panels adorning the front and three velvet bars on the bell-shaped sleeves, the gown is trimmed in either black velvet or the distinctive color of the degree's academic field.

Caps, too, hold certain meanings. They are made of fabrics such as serge, broadcloth, cotton, rayon or silk, but only the doctoral candidate wears velvet. A black thread tassel adorns the associate's and bachelor's cap while a gold thread tassel dangles from a doctoral cap, all of which are shaped as either mortarboards or soft, square-topped caps.

But essentially it is the hood that gives color and meaning to the academic attire. As a shell of varying lengths, the hood for both baccalaureate and graduate degrees is made of material matching the gown. Lined with the color or colors of the institution conferring the degree, the hood is bordered with velvet of the proper width and color to designate the field of learning. For example:

Brown—architecture and fine arts
 Light Brown—business
 Light Blue—education
 White—liberal arts
 Yellow—science

The mace bearer leading Mercer's procession is another venerable tradition still found on some campuses. The practice is derived from English medieval times when an official, such as the Lord of the Admiralty or the Chief Justice of the Court of Assizes, needed a bodyguard upon taking office or opening court. This purely ceremonial position is accorded to an esteemed faculty member who precedes the president when entering and leaving the commencement ceremony.

Dear MCCC Alumnus,

The Mercer County Community College administration, faculty, staff and Foundation Board congratulate you on the completion of your Associate's degree or certificate. It is our pleasure to welcome you as an official Mercer alumnus.

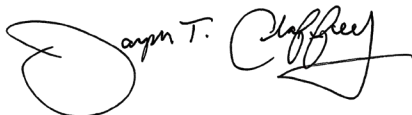

As of today, you have earned the privilege to wear the MCCC Alumni Seal Pin. Let the torch serve as a reminder of your time spent at Mercer, and let it light the path to your future. Display it proudly!

No matter where life may take you after your time at MCCC, we want you to remain connected to the Mercer community. Whether it is through volunteering, attending events, mentoring, or providing an internship, there are so many ways for you to give back to your alma mater.

In addition, we urge you to begin to build your own tradition of giving to the Mercer County Community College Foundation. In the years to come, Mercer students will continue to need tuition assistance, technological support, books and supplies. The giving opportunities available to you as an alumnus can make a difference in the quality of instruction and the success of tomorrow's Mercer students who will be working hard to fulfil their dreams.

We invite you to visit www.mccc.edu/alumni and become an active member of our Alumni family.

Again, congratulations and best wishes for continued success!
